Cable, cable?

Harold Horn, (center), Executive Director of the Cable TV Information Center in Washington, D.C., is shown with four members of the Western V Community Conference at a recent meeting to discuss the prospect of cable television coming to the communities of Romulus, Belleville, Sumpter, Huron and Van Buren. The Information Center was established several years ago to help municipalities deal with the complicated and growing field of cable TV. Once known as a strictly rural business, the cable TV industry is currently experiencing phenomenal growth in largely untouched urban markets, thanks to satellite communications and the growing demand for alternative forms of entertainment. Cable companies now can offer complete entertainment packages to consumers as well as security services and a host of other options. Western 5 ponders cable TV franchise

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

The newly-formed Western Five Community Conference will spearhead efforts to obtain cable television for its member communities.

The conference is composed of Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron townships and Belleville and Romulus. Formed under the leadership of Henry Redman, former Sumpter Township manager, the conference will work toward getting large grants and institute cost-saving measures beneficial to its members.

At the conference's monthly meeting at Van Buren Township Hall, discussion on how best to get cable television into the areas represented by the five communities at the cheapest price boiled down to a motion made by Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley.

He recommended that all five communities advertise in their local legal newspapers for written proposals by companies who offer cable television. His motion specified that the proposals be received by April 17, 1980.

Oakley's motion carried unanimously.

Discussed by community elected officials was whether the five communities each wanted to award a franchise to a cable television company or set up the entire operation themselves.

Consensus was to combine individual efforts into one joint venture and to let Redman evaluate the written proposals from cable television companies as they come in.

Oakley said: "A joint venture is the best deal to us all."

The board voted to let Redman evaluate the proposals and to give his recommendation of the best two or three at the group's next monthly meeting, April 24.

The Romulus mayor, who dominated the bulk of the discussion on cable television, said the Western Five board was only a "recommending body". In that light, he said Redman's evaluation and recommendation should be taken by each community's member on the Western Five board back to their individual councils or township boards for their consideration.

Belleville Mayor Justin Emerson broached the plan to advertise for the written proposals and received support from Van Buren Supervisor Pat Cullin, who suggested the five communities should advertise jointly.

At this point, Oakley declared: "We don't want to wait another two years for cable television. You guys do what you want to do."

After more discussion, the board voted unanimously in favor of Oakley's motion to advertise in local newspapers for written proposals for cable television.

A member of the audience, Canton Township Police Chief Jerry Cox, asked to speak on the issue. He said that his township had gone all through what the Western Five board was discussing on cable television.

In the end, he said, Canton had requested cable television firms to submit "proposals in concept" as opposed to the community submitting "hard-line specs" which the various companies would try to meet.

Many communities in out-Wayne County, including Romulus, have been approached recently by cable television companies in efforts to have franchises awarded for its installation.

Most of the presentations made by individual cable television firms are similar in nature, including the amount of revenue received on a yearly basis by the community.

As discussed by the Western Five board Thursday, each company's proposal will have to be evaluated and compared in efforts to see which company will offer the most services for the least money, Redman explained.

Present for the board meeting were Cullin, chairperson; Emerson, vice-chairman; Roy Raker, Huron Township supervisor; Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley; and Shirley Sulkey, secretary to Sumpter Township Supervisor Robert K. Demski, representing Demski.

On advisory council

Van Buren Township Supervisor Pat Cullin and Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley recently were elected as members of the Wayne County Community Development Block Grant Advisory Council at the organizational meeting of group, held in Garden City. They will represent their respective communities on the council and will have one vote each on matters relating to block grant funds for this area.

For flammable liquids

City toughens ordinances

Reacting to emergency situations occurring in past years locally and in nearby communities, the Romulus City Council recently took action to regulate storage of flammable liquids in huge tanks.

Under the new ordinance, a level sensing device must be installed on storage tanks that will provide audio and visual signals at least 20 minutes in advance of overflowing. Also, equipment must be installed that will automatically shut down all pipelines to the storage tank 10 minutes prior to overflow.

The new ordinance also calls for an on-site operator at recovery and sending stations during filling and fueling operations.

On recommendation of Charles Lowther, city attorney, existing storage tanks will be granted a 180-day variance under the new ordinance.

A recent explosion and fire at a tank farm in Taylor, plus several similar occurrences in Romulus recently, prompted the action by council. Romulus, according to Fire Chief John Wilhide, contains the most potential for a disastrous fire and explosion of any community in Michigan.

Romulus is home to several large tank farms, which each contain up to 10 million gallons of flammable liquids.

'...We're counting on you'

Census facts have far-reaching uses

Not long ago a young woman in Denver telephoned the Census Bureau and asked how she could find out the number of unmarried men in her city.

The bureau employee said he could supply the information, broken down by neighborhoods, if she so desired. Fantastic, she said, and can you tell me the neighborhoods where the men are young and wealthy?

This woman learned something that business, civic and government leaders have known for years — the census often is the best, and sometimes the only, source of accurate statistics about people and their housing, from a national level right down to a specific city block.

Every U.S. resident will be asked to answer the 1980 census, which begins on April 1. The outcome will be a new, in-depth assessment of the nation, the nature of which has not been available for 10 years.

The Constitutional purpose of the census, to provide a basis for reapportionment among the states of seats in the House of Representatives, has been constant since 1790.

In modern times, particularly since the advent of the computer three decades ago, other applications of census data have become increasingly diverse. Census information is used daily everywhere in the United States.

In Illinois, a real estate firm uses census data to give interested home buyers an instant mini-profile of prospective neighborhoods.

In large cities, such as Atlanta and San Francisco, transportation planners rely on census information when selecting bus routes, subway stops and highways that will need widening.

In Detroit, a pizza parlor chain consults census statistics when choosing the best site for a new restaurant.

During the past 10 years, government at every level has multiplied dramatically its dependence on census data to help plan and implement programs. More than 100 federal programs now guide their spending of an estimated $50 billion annually with census statistics. Funding for the Cooperative Extension Service, for example, hinges upon a state's rural and farm population as determined by the census. Spending for the Headstart program depends upon the number of children in families below the poverty line.

More jobs, help for abused children, crime prevention assistance, extra reading teachers, federal highway funds — for these and many more federal programs, where the money is spent depends at least partially on what the 1980 census finds.

But census information does not cease being useful after the check is written. Local and state officials also rely heavily on census data when managing their programs.

For instance, federally funded nutritional and social service programs for the elderly bring senior citizens together at least five days a week to share hot, nutritious meals and companionship in local firehalls, church basements and other meeting places. Congress has specified that each participating state should receive funds according to its over-60 population as determined by the census — the more senior citizens, the larger the check.

Local officials must pick sites for the nutritional program. In Indianapolis, census data were consulted to pinpoint the 20 small areas of the city with the largest numbers of senior citizens. The Mayor's Task Force on Aging used this information and opened nutrition centers for the elderly in each of the 20 neighborhoods.

Every 1980 census question will provide important information for use in or out of government — always, as prescribed by law, anonymous statistics that can't be linked to individuals. Answers to the income questions on the census, for example, will directly influence a community's share in the General Revenue Sharing program. On a more local level, a firm in Nashville recently used census data about the number of working mothers, median family income, and the age of children, to find areas in need of private day care centers.

Census data can be very helpful to community groups. The Boy Scouts in Minnesota have used census statistics to assist their projections of future enrollment and the types of facilities that would be needed. In Kansas City, a church planned its building fund drive using census information about its attendance area. Block associations and others can make their case to city hall for a park, or against a proposed highway, with census statistics to back up their reasoning.

The Census Bureau will publish an estimated 300,000 pages of 1980 census statistics, which will be available also on microfilm, microfiche and computer tapes.

So ... Answer the census, 'we're counting on you.'

The Wayne County District Judges Association has a new slate of officers, following their installation into office at a recent dinner meeting. Heading up the leadership slate will be Dearborn Heights District Judge Duane Dunick as treasurer (back row, from left), Westland District Judge Evan Callanan as second vice-president, Garden City District Judge Richard L. Hammer as first vice-president, 34th District Judge Henry Zaborowski as secretary and 33rd District Judge Audrey C. Stroia as president (front row, center), who presented a "thank you" plaque to retiring president Dearborn Heights District Judge Leo K. Foran (front row, left). On hand for the ceremony was Wayne County Probate Judge Y. Gladys Barsamian (front row, right), of the Juvenile Division, who handled the installation of new officers.

31 communities to share in grant

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has approved application to the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for $6.1 million for 31 communities to share in the 1980 Community Development Block Grant Program.

The commissioners authorized the application on March 13 while sitting as the Ways and Means Committee. With federal approval, it will be the county's sixth year of participation in the program which has brought more than $22.5 million of U.S. funds into the county since its beginning in 1975 with only a $637,000 allocation.

Under the block grant program, the county organizes willing communities with less than 50,000 population and asks HUD for funds for the entire group, with detailed plans for distribution and expenditure of the money. Communities with more than 50,000 population apply and receive funds directly from HUD.

The Block Grant Program is a federal stimulant for public works projects in local communities. It is administered by the County Office of Program Development and Coordination, although all projects are determined at local levels after public hearings to evaluate priorities proposed in the application to HUD which has final authority.

Approved projects cover areas that include land acquisition for community use, water and sewer development, public housing expansion, recreation program and elimination of blighted buildings. Main criteria of the program are that it must principally benefit low-and-moderate income persons, aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight, or otherwise meet an urgent community need.

Ineligible projects would include construction of government facilities, political activity, income supplements or building of medical, school or stadium facilities.

The application to HUD will be reviewed in April, and if approved, block grant funds will be released July 5, according to the Office of Program Development and Coordination. Public hearings on selection of various projects were held in January in Southgate and in February in Garden City.

Basic policy of the Block Grant Programs is determined by an 18-member advisory council which includes four county commissioners along with 14 other elected officials from the communities receiving funds. The commissioners are William Sullivan (D-Wyandotte), Martha G. Scott (D-Highland Park), Thomas Presnell (D-Westland) and Clarence R. Young (D-Ecorse).

Among those 31 communities participating in the application are Belleville, Flat Rock, Huron Township, Romulus, Sumpter Township and Van Buren Township.

Miller third grade students survey Pilgrim's life style

The Pilgrims and their life style has been the topic of study from students in the third grade class of Valerie Vangoss at Miller Elementary School in New Boston.

In addition to reading articles and watching film strips about the Pilgrims, the youngsters made a large model of an early colonial settlement, complete with a stockade, school, playground and "modern" swimming pool.

The youngsters also composed articles about early colonial life.

According to Sandy Harrison: "In the Colony days, people were punished if they did not obey the rules. One of the punishments was the stocks. People were locked in the stocks. Another punishment was the dunking stool. People were tied to a stool and dunked. When people were punished, other people stood and laughed."

Jackie Boach, in writing about fun on the frontier, said: "People in New England had fun by shooting at targets. Sometimes they would dance; they would build houses. Sometimes they would have fun by fishing or by going hunting. They liked to wrestle. That is how they had fun in New England."

Colony homes was the topic Mike Emery selected to writing about: "The Colony homes were hard to build. They had to mix rocks and dirt and water to hold the logs together. They had to chop down lots of trees to build their homes. Sometimes when they got their work done they played games. The games they played were like weight lifting, swimming, hunting and shooting deer and rabbit. They like to wrestle, too."

Council gives OK to EDC bonding for Capac Kasama

A project plan submitted by Capac Kasama of Capac, Mich., was approved last week by Romulus City Council, paving the way for $1.2 million in bonding from the Romulus Economic Development Corporation (EDC).

Money from the sale of the $1.2 million in tax-exempt municipal bonds, issued by the EDC, will enable the firm to purchase and remodel a building at 7845 Middlebelt Road, formerly occupied by Pine Engineering, at a total cost of $1.7 million.

If the EDC gives its approval to Capac Kasama, the Manufacturers Bank has agreed to purchase the bonds at a preferred interest rate. The Pine Engineering building contains a total of 86,000 square feet which is divided into a 2-story office structure and a 1-story warehouse.

The 86,000 square feet will be occupied by Hartz Mountain Corp., 26,000 square feet; Metro Industrial Clinic, 12,000 square feet; Bobbish Industrial Products, 22,000 square feet; and Westlane Industry and Kean Manufacturing, 26,000 square feet.

the kick-off day in an area from city hall to Kennedy Park. The Pepsi Cola Company, located at 30003 Van Born in Romulus, operates a modern, new 88,000-square foot warehouse facility that services most of the metropolitan Detroit downriver area. Opened in 1978, the company employs some 110 people at their Romulus location. With federal funds

Western 5 communities collect police communications network

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Five area communities, including Van Buren Township and Belleville, will have a newly-installed police communications network administered by the Western Five Community Conference.

The conference was created in 1979 through the efforts of Henry Redman, former Sumpter Township manager, with a federal grant.

The Western Five can obtain grants collectively more easily and more rapidly, as well as save individual member communities money on services through joint purchasing procedures, Redman explained.

At the group's monthly meeting Thursday at Van Buren Township Hall, the board voted to have the Western Five administer the modern police communications network and to apply for additional federal funding to operate it.

Present for the meeting were Jerry Cox, Canton Township police chief; Mickey McLaughlin, Belleville police chief; and John Willet, Van Buren Township police chief.

Cox explained that the new police communications network will serve the communities of Huron, Sumpter, Canton and Van Buren townships and the city of Belleville. Canton is not a member of the Western Five.

Although federal funds paid for the equipment and its installation, CETA funds to pay salaries of the staff needed to operate the network have not been forthcoming some two years later due to a tightening of funds by that federal agency, Cox said.

Under the concept whereby the Western Five will be charged with administration of the police communications network, any CETA funds now held by individual member communities will be turned over to the conference.

Any additional federal funding obtained by Redman will be added to the total CETA money previously turned over to Western Five.

Cox explained to the board that most of the communications equipment is up, but that people are needed to man posts in each community.

Chief McLaughlin commented during the discussion that the new network will be "one of the most modern communications network in the area" and will include tape recorders to store specific conversations.

The Belleville police chief also said that Dearborn Heights recently obtained funding to hire 15 people. He said that on the basis of their combined population, the five communities in the network should be able to triple that amount of funding.

Convention planning

Two Romulus officials got a sneak preview of what Romulus and the City of Detroit will look like during the 1980 Republican National Convention when the Civic Host Committee unveiled some of its plans during its first general meeting recently in Cobo Hall. Civic Host Committee members and guests gathered to hear Chairman Thomas A. Murphy introduce the standing committee chairmen heading the host effort. The standing committee chairmen outlined some ways that the 20,000 visiting convention delegates, alternates and dignitaries will be greeted when they arrive next July. The plans include — erecting and staffing information booths in 30 area hotels to provide assistance to the visiting Republicans; — publishing an official, 48-page convention program providing the Convention agenda along with a look at Detroit; — developing volunteer insignia that will identify the expected 3,000 Detroit area residents who will be pressed into service to make the host effort work; lining up volunteers to meet and greet visitors as they touch down at area airports; and gathering volunteers with wheels to meet special transportation needs that may arise. To crank up spirits on the homefront, the Civic Host Committee also previewed its official line of red-white-and blue souvenir merchandise ranging from ball point pens to cigarette lighters. The souvenirs all feature Detroit's Civic Host Committee convention logo. Storefronts and streets throughout the Metropolitan area will be ablaze with red-white-and-blue signs, garlands and balloons announcing "Detroit Loves A Good Party." The theme was developed for the Civic Host Committee by the Southfield-based national advertising firm, Barkley & Evergreen, Inc. Sale profits from the merchandise and decorations kits will go to help fund the Civic Host Committee's projected $500,000 effort. Some 20 commemorative different items ranging in price from $1.49 to $17.50 were displayed at the press conference and are pictured in the photo above at left. In the photo at right, a small scale mock-up of the information booths which will be erected in Metropolitan Airport and all hotels housing state delegations, was displayed. In Brief

Romulus Senior Citizens Center is seeking a representative from the community at large for its newly-formed Senior Citizens Advisory Board.

Donna Lee Zavitz, senior citizens coordinator, asked that interested applicants contact her at 941-0666, ext. 257.

Zavitz said the new board will assist in planning services and creating social, recreational and cultural programs for the aged. She said the board will confer and advise the mayor, city council, recreation director and herself on programs which are beneficial to the center and to senior citizens. Previously, Zavitz had requested representatives from other organizations to sit on the board.

She has scheduled an unofficial meeting of the new group for Monday at 1:30 p.m. at the senior citizens center.

A total of 28 permits were issued during February by the Romulus Building Department for construction, amounting to $733,699.

A breakdown of permits showed three single family homes; two to demolish buildings; 19 additions and alterations; one commercial building; one industrial building; and two signs.

Included in the new construction is a $428,000 commercial alteration to the restaurant and cocktail lounge by Host International at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

Wayne County 4-H is offering a new opportunity for you to be a 4-H sheep or swine sponsor to a 4-H youth.

Just what is involved, you ask.

A sponsor furnishes an initial fee to a 4-H youth to purchase sheep or swine for an animal project. The youth assumes responsibility for feeding, veterinary care, training and developing the animal.

The animal is prepared for auction sale at the local county fair, and the initial fee you as a sponsor provided is repaid after the checks from the buyers are received.

A sponsor benefits because it is a "worthwhile project" for tax purposes, there is an opportunity to support your community youth and business can display ribbons or pictures, a spokesman said.

For further information on getting involved contact the Wayne County 4-H Office at 721-6576.

Volunteers still are needed to work at information booths in Romulus during the July Republican convention. Residents interested in manning the booths should contact the Public Information Office, City of Romulus, at 941-0666, ext. 216.

In a move to ease the rush to purchase 1980 license plate tabs by the March 31 deadline, Secretary of State Richard H. Austin has ordered all branch offices to remain open between 8:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., Saturday.

According to Austin, sales of 1980 plate tabs, now totaling just over four million, are lagging nearly half a million behind last year with an estimated 2 million tabs yet to be sold.

All vehicle owners must purchase plate tabs by March 31, if they intend to operate their vehicles on public highways, or face a possible fine, Austin said.

Wayne Assembly to get part of $20 billion expansion

Latini: 'Wayne has been producing dependable small cars'

The 1980s promise to be an exciting decade for the auto industry as manufacturers bring to market high technology vehicles designed to meet the drying needs of today's economy-minded buyers.

So says J.J. Latini, manager of the Ford Motor Co.'s Wayne Assembly Plant.

According to Latini: "The Wayne Assembly Plant figures prominently in the future plans of Ford Motor Company, which will spend some $200 billion on 1978-1985 vehicles for the North American market. This fall Ford will introduce a new front-wheel-drive car with one of the most advanced powertrains in the industry."

"I am proud that the Wayne Plant is one of two Ford facilities in the United States selected to build these new products," Latini added. "Wayne has been producing dependable small cars to meet this country's transportation needs since 1974, when it was converted to the build of the Maverick and Comet. More recently Wayne has been building the Granada, Monarch and Versailles."

"Over the years Wayne has developed a reputation within Ford Motor Company for building quality products. I know the dedication of our Wayne employees and am confident that they will continue to produce cars that measure up to the company's expectations."

"In today's highly competitive market, the public has increased its demands with respect to quality," Latini said. "Meeting these demands is essential, if a company is to continue to prosper and grow. The Wayne Plant is prepared to do its part in seeing to it that these new Ford Motor Company products are an outstanding success."

I also am pleased that converting Wayne to the build of fuel-efficient small cars promises to provide increased job security for our employees," he concluded.

Wayne Bank axes expansion plans

The Wayne Bank, which had planned a $1.8 million construction project on land adjacent to its present site in downtown Wayne, has decided to "postpone indefinitely" the construction of that new bank.

Although still acknowledging a great need for more space, the Board of Directors voted to abandon the expansion plans in light of "present uncertain economic conditions, inflation, higher interest rates and escalating costs."

In a resolution passed by the board of directors, the bank stated that "prudent decisions must be made in the best interest of stockholders and depositors."

The bank had announced plans to build the new facility about a year ago, after six years of negotiations with the city and next door Methodist church to work out an arrangement whereby the church would buy the old bank building and utilize it for a building project of its own.

The new bank was to be relocated on land owned by the city and set aside for that purpose for the past six years, as plans were being developed.

In announcing the postponement, the board chairman Arthur S. Truesdell said the decision was made "with profound regret" and "disappointment," and thanked the church and city for full cooperation during the planning of the new building.

Harland Sanders shows off his gold-plated pressure cooker signifying his 50 years in the restaurant business to Theodore and Maybelle Hooten of Belleville, Michigan during the recent Kentucky Fried Chicken International Convention in Las Vegas. The Hootens were among the more than 3,000 persons from all over the world attending the annual gathering. Hooten's store is part of KFC's 6,000-unit system which sells nearly five billion pieces of chicken each year. The gold-plated pressure cooker's permanent home, incidentally, is at the Colonel Harland Sanders Museum in Louisville, Ky.

Despite slash in operating funds

County commissioners seek ways to keep parks open

Despite a fifty percent slash in park operating funds this year, persistence by the Wayne County

Board of Commissioners in seeking ways to keep the 4,297 acres of park land open to the public is beginning to pay off.

The park budget was cut from $2.7 million in 1978-79 to $1.2 million, Spearheaded by the county's Public Works Committee, chaired by Commissioner Clarence R. Young of Ecorse, a series of meetings with representatives from the county Road Commission—trustees for the parks—has resulted in both good and bad news for organized baseball and softball organizations.

Faced with spring baseball and softball scheduling, athletic associations that have been using county diamonds over the past years, are in a near panic as the result of the parks division's refusal to issue them permits for the coming season.

A recent meeting between the two groups and Rick Foy, president of the Westland Youth Athletic Association, representing nearly 4,000 youngsters from that city, has resulted in a tentative agreement by the Road Commission to issue park permits to organized softball and baseball associations scattered throughout the county. However, not all the news is good. In order to obtain the permit each organization must submit a certificate of insurance.

The decision to approve permits, accompanied by proof of insurance, came about following an hour-long series of questions directed at Joseph N. Hartmann, assistant managing director of the Road Commission, and David L. Jackson, assistant director of administration for the Road Commission, by members of the Public Works Committee.

Hartmann explained to Commissioners Rose Mary C. Robinson, Richard E. Manning, William Suzore, William Sullivan, Ervin R. Steiner Jr. and Young that the county currently carries a $200,000 self-insured retention policy that leaves the county liable for the first $200,000 in case of injury.

"The high cost of insurance, today," he said, "prohibits us from buying 100 percent coverage, and the fact that we can no longer maintain the parks as we have in the past drives the costs even higher.

"We're not about to issue permits under these conditions. We could lose a bundle of money."

When asked by Commissioner Robinson, if they had contacted their insurance company to see if they could obtain additional coverage, Jackson admitted they hadn't.

"Our attorneys are very cautious people," he added, "and the cost is prohibitive."

insurance out of their own pockets. We're lucky to have youngsters that are interested in playing ball in the park instead of selling dope in the park."

During the meeting, committee members also urged Hartmann to conduct a series of public hearings to obtain input from civic and athletic groups on ways they might contribute to park services, but March 13 Jackson said the Road Commission Board did not feel such action was pertinent to the problem.

"Since we're now requiring insurance along with permits, there is no need to hold hearings," he said. "It's as simple as that."

According to Edwin Mika, superintendent of parks, there are 13 baseball and 44 softball diamonds within the park system.

"We closed the parks Nov. 5 and hope to re-open early next month," he explained, "as soon as we can bring in a few extra men." When asked if "scratch" teams picnicking in the park will require permits to play ball, Mika said, no.

"However," he added, "if they are playing on one of the diamonds and an organized team with a permit comes along, they'll have to move. When we issue permits, it implies that we are accepting responsibility for any injuries, that's why we are requiring organized clubs to provide their own liability coverage."

Parks affected include Bell Creek, Elizabeth, Lola Valley, Lower Rouge, Middle Rouge, Veteran's Memorial, Victory and the William P. Holliday Park.

'It's a damned shame...'

Both Jackson and Hartmann agreed, however, to take up the problem with their own board in an effort to reconcile the issue. The result was their tentative agreement to issue permits with the insurance proof.

An insurance carrier, contacted by Commissioner Thomas Presnell of Westland, indicated a $200,000 bodily injury and property damage policy probably will cost a league composed of 20 teams "at least $2,000 per season".

Presnell said: "It's a damned shame these kids have to pay for Area Red Cross joins in leukocyte interferon drive

Southeastern Michigan Red Cross Blood Services will join in a nationwide effort to increase the availability of human leukocyte interferon, a promising substance used experimentally in the treatment of cancer.

The center has contracted to provide upwards of 50,000 units annually of buffy coats to the Parke, Davis division of Warner-Lambert Co., which has been awarded a contract to produce leukocyte interferon for the experimental program by the National Cancer Institute of the National Institute of Health.

Buffy coats are that portion of whole blood which contains the raw material which the pharmaceutical company will use to produce leukocyte interferon.

"Interferon," explained A. William Shafer, MD, director of the local Blood Services, "is an anti-viral substance that shows great promise in slowing the growth of, or eradicating, malignant tumors." He also added that most interferon used to date in studies with human patients has been imported from Finland.

Shafer, a hematology specialist (diseases of the blood), said that additional collections of whole blood will not be needed to furnish the buffy coats for interferon.

He explained: "Removing the buffy coat from regular whole blood donations will provide a better product for patient care. It will enhance the safety of a red cell transfusion because patients sometimes experience febrile reactions when their white cell antigens do not precisely match those of a donor."

The lab processes for separating the buffy coat from whole blood are the same as those used routinely in blood component preparation. A unit of whole blood, after it is spun in a centrifuge, separates into three layers in the primary bag: A bottom layer of red cells, a middle buffy coat layer, and a top layer of plasma.

Pressure exerted on the primary pack is used to force the plasma into an integrally connected satellite bag.

After the plasma is drawn off, pressure is again exerted on the primary pack, and the buffy coat is forced through a "Y" connection into a second satellite bag. The red cells remain in the primary container. All procedures are similar to those routinely used in preparation of other blood components.

Shafer said the buffy coat from one blood donation provides the raw material for one-third of an interferon dose. One of the current therapeutic trials calls for a patient to receive one dose daily for two months, then three doses per week for four months. 360 buffy coats (from the same number of whole blood donations) are required to provide raw material for the treatment of one patient.

Dr. Shafer believes that the tremendous amount of leukocyte interferon required for patient treatment may bring about two changes for blood centers.

Shifting freshly drawn blood from collection sites to centers for processing will be speeded up to assure that the white cells destined for interferon production are viable.

"Secondly, voluntary blood donations may increase," Shafer said, "because of the announcement of this blood related form of experimental cancer treatment. Once-a-year donors might now donate twice-a-year, and the non-donor might have a new motivation to give blood for the first time."

In addition to awarding contracts to laboratories for the production of 50 billion units of leukocyte interferon, the National Cancer Institute will support the production of a like number of units of lymphoblast and fibroblast interferons. Thus far, patient treatment with the last two named interferons has been on a much smaller scale than with the leukocyte type. Only the leukocyte interferon requires buffy coats as its raw material.

As an experimental substance, interferon cannot be marketed in the United States for preventive or therapeutic purposes at this time, nor can it be exported for such purposes.

Award winner

A member company of the Wade-Trim Environmental Group, Inc. of Taylor has won a consulting engineering excellence award for its work in the design and installation of a new 30" diameter water main across the Saginaw River, a project completed for the City of Bay City last June. The company, Edmands Engineering Inc. of Bay City, was presented the Honorable Conceptor award by the Consulting Engineers Council of Michigan which sponsors the statewide competition annually. Entries were judged on the following criteria: technical value to engineering profession, uniqueness, social and environmental significance, innovation, originality and how well the project met the client's needs. "This award is a tribute to the teamwork and outstanding professional skills of the Edmands' staff," says Donald R. Trim, Wade-Trim president. "We are proud that their work has received this prestigious award." Wade-Trim, which are planning consultants for Romulus, Canton Township, Van Buren Township, Belleville and Wayne, is headquartered in Taylor. Showing a graphic description of the award-winning project were the firm's president, Trim (right) and N.A. Rosenberg of Edmands, manager of the project.

Board of auditors say

County manager 'not all cracked up to be'

County reorganization with a strong elected county executive or appointed county manager at the helm is not all its cracked up to be according to two reports released today by the 3-man Wayne County Board of Auditors.

The reports were prepared by the auditing staff to determine what impact Senate Bill 652 (county reorganization) will have on Wayne County and projected costs of a charter commission.

Although the Governor's office has set a "reasonable" figure of $300,000, an analysis by the auditors indicates it will be more like $2,228,570. Commissioner Paul G. Citkowski of Detroit, chairman of the Wayne County General Government Committee, vowed earlier that he would "bottle up" a reorganization resolution until Governor Milliken approves — and signs — a bill that will provide the county with more realistic funding. Estimates on the cost of a charter have ranged from the Governor's $300,000 to the county clerk's $3 to 5 million.

Richard E. Manning, commissioner from Redford-Livonia, and a member of the General Government Committee said: "Since the difference is so large, it would be appropriate that we have a meeting of the state budget director and our auditors to confirm the general state proposal to fund all necessary costs so that we know the nature of our commitment."

Senate Bill 652, as it now stands, makes the county liable for some $523,820 in office and staffing expenses and an estimate $1.7 million for compensation and election of charter commissioners. Passage of SB 652 without an accompanying bill signed by the Governor providing the necessary funding will, in the estimate of most county commissioners, leave Wayne County taxpayers holding the proverbial bag.

"As far as electing a county executive or appointing a manager to run the county is concerned," the report from Auditors Richard T. Kelly, Ted Mrozowski and Leonard D. Proctor asserts, "it wouldn't mean a thing. Neither will have more than 16.9 percent control over county appropriations. Our analysis shows more than 83.1 percent of county budget appropriations will continue to be controlled by elected county officials, the courts and certain funding operations mandated by state statutes and federal government regulations."

According to the report an executive or manager will control some $47,531,135 of county appropriations while the balance, $233,721,285 will be controlled by the Sheriff, Prosecuting Attorney, Common Pleas, Juvenile Court and Child Care, Probate Court, Recorder's Court, Circuit Court, Register of Deeds, County Clerk, Board of Commissioners, County Treasurer, Wayne County General Hospital, Construction and Operation of the new county jail, Soldier's and Sailor's Burials, Board of Prisoners at the Detroit House of Correction, Medical Treatment of Adults, Community Mental Health, Air Pollution Division and the County Library Board.

LOTHAR E. KONIETZKO

(Lothar E. Konietzko, Associated Newspapers' chief photographer for 26 years, welcomes questions and letters from the ANP area on photography and photo news. Please write him at Associated Newspapers, 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne.)

By LOTHAR E. KONIETZKO

Photography is an art — an art that demands composition and seeing.

It is also an art of thought and discipline.

And the road to success usually begins as a hobby and at a young age.

HOW TO BECOME A PHOTOGRAPHER

To start out early and become familiar with the art of photography, one should use a simple camera while still attending elementary school.

Buy or use a camera that does not have to be set for shutter speed, lens opening or focused for distance, or in simple terms, a camera which is automatic and only has to be advanced to take the next picture.

A lens eye view

How to be a photographer

By ANP Chief Photographer Lothar E. Konietzko

It should have a built in flash or should take a flash gun for pictures when there is not enough light available. While practicing with this simple camera, make sure, that you never "cut off" the heads of people. It is always better to cut off the feet. Hold the camera steady. Frame your picture and keep it in the center of your viewfinder. Also, keep your camera level and do not take pictures into the sunlight. Learn how to load and unload your camera with film or film cassette. Always keep fingerprints off the lens.

After one has taken enough pictures with a simple camera in available light or with flash bulbs, and has familiarized himself with photography and the handling of a camera, it would then be advisable to advance to a higher priced camera. This camera should have an adjustment for opening or closing of the aperture (lens opening), shutter speed and distance. (focus). Built in light meter is a good feature, and most single lens reflex cameras have a built in light meter. A photographer, however, should be capable of taking pictures without such light meter in case this system fails. Instructions on how to expose in different light conditions, daylight or others, are included with each roll of film you buy.

It is best to read instructions when buying a new camera and to practice loading and unloading film, as setting lens openings and shutter speeds while there is no film in the camera.

You must know how the camera operates and what the dials and settings on your camera are. It is very important not to forget a picture taken with flash, electronic or flash bulb, must be taken at a certain speed which is recommended by the manufacturer of that camera.

If one does not watch these recommended settings on the shutter dial (speed dial), you may have only a partially exposed photo.

Join a camera club. Make friends with other photographers and find out more about the art of photography.

You will learn about different types of film available in black and white and color; you will learn about sensitivity of each type of film which will be marked in ASA on each film you buy; and you will also learn how to develop a roll of film — how to arrive at the final product: the photograph.

While in Junior High or High School, take photography classes and work on your student newspaper or yearbook staff. It's a valuable experience.

Further your knowledge in this field by taking photographs of people in your family, of fires, of accidents and other interesting events.

Familiarize yourself with wedding photographs by assisting other professional photographers.

Take pictures on a free lance basis for your local newspapers or work with professional photographers and watch how they do it.

If you do not understand, ask and they will help you.

While you are in college, attend photojournalism classes.

If you want to become a newsphotographer and make your living from it, you'll need all kinds of experiences.

Enter photo contests, and get your pictures published in newspapers, magazines, houseorgans, programs, etc.

You need not be paid for every picture you enter and a credit line under your photograph will do you more good at later times, when you apply for a job at a newspaper.

Recognition is the most important diploma in becoming a professional photographer.

Planning and building your own darkroom at home is highly recommended.

Keep all the clippings of your photographs published in any publication. Make enlargements of your best photographs and mount them on 11 x 14 or 16 x 20 artboards.

Keep your pictures clean, spotless and sharp.

Give them a title if you can. Prepare a portfolio as your showcase of your work in photography. You will need all of this, when you apply for a job in newsphotography or other places.

If you cannot take photojournalism classes while in high school or in college, take classes in Adult Education programs.

Go to private photo schools or enroll in short courses offered by the universities or professional photographer's associations.

Some camera manufacturers have courses in photography and call it the Nikon School of Photography.

These classes are free, while universities and professional photographers associations charge a small fee only.

When applying for a job as a newsphotographer you must fill out an application. Your past experiences and recognitions in the field of photography will now be beneficial to you.

Remember a good portfolio or samples of your work should be provided while you try to be accepted for this job.

Start with your hometown newspaper or other small weekly publications before you apply for employment at the bigger, daily papers.

When you fill out an application, they may ask you the following questions: Name, address, phone, birthday and marital status, education, related courses, the run of the mill.

Activities in and out of high schools or college. Employment experience, responsibilities and other. Military service and most important, references.

But the key to employment is your ability to produce exciting photos.

Most Newspapers will provide you with camera and equipment.

If you use your own, you receive a weekly camera allowance. When you work at a newspaper or other publications, become a member of a professional organization such as the Professional Photographers of America or the National Press Photographers Association. Most of the States have such or local organizations.

In Newsphotography, you will cover such events as you find in your daily newspapers. You will cover sports, news events, spot news, general news, society, fashion portrait, picture stories and others.

You may travel on your assignments and cover such news events

Things that matter

Hymns and the average folk

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

The new Lutheran Hymnal, to be published within the next couple of years, will include a favorite of Elvis Presley, Billy Graham and other evangelicals — "How Great Thou Art."

As one stunned music critic says: "If Bach were alive today, that would make him turn over in his grave."

A loss for the music highbrow is a victory for the man in the pew. There is the feeling among some that the kind of "classical" music that is ordinarily heard in church may be one of the reasons people stay away from Sunday-morning worship.

Even many who attend church do not appear to have been brought there by the music.

A look around the congregation during the singing of a hymn on Sunday morning in the average church often reveals that many are not singing at all, while others are just barely moving their lips.

"What the average churchgoer likes," says a choir director somewhat disdainfully, "is a combination of religious sentiments that are warm and nostalgic and tunes that are singable and familiar."

That may be what the average churchgoer likes, but the fact that it often is not what the more musically educated choirmaster likes has created something of a crisis in church music today.

It's a battle of "Home on the Range" vs. Bach and the other masters.

Much popular church music, contended Dr. Archibald Davison, once professor of church music at Harvard University, is little more than "a variation of 'Home on the Range.' The average layman feels at home with that song and his performing powers are adequate for its requirements."

On any given Sunday, says Davison, "with thousands of other laymen, we shall rise and sing, 'Home on the Range.' It will not be called that, of course. And we shall not recognize our old friend because not enough of him will appear at any one time to make recognition possible. But he will be there — here a little of his rhythm, there a bit of his melody, suddenly a scrap of his harmony."

Church music began as plainsong, a musical form of speech sung by the choir in the Roman Catholic Church.

In plainsong it was the words that were important. No devices of rhythm were employed. The church recognized that rhythm would seize the attention of the worshipper and distract him from his pious contemplation.

THE MCGUIRE FAMILY

Evangelistic McGuires will hold meeting at Lighthouse Assembly

The Rev. Raymond and Mary Frances McGuire will be beginning a 2-week evangelistic meeting Sunday at the Lighthouse Assembly of God in Romulus.

The evangelistic meeting will be at 7 p.m. nightly at the church, located at 365732 Goddard Road, Romulus, March 30 through April 13.

The McGuires will sing and play music as well as preach each night. They also will conduct prayers for the sick.

The McGuires have pastored in California and Oklahoma, besides travelling extensively throughout the southern United States to conduct revival meetings. Recently, they made their home in the Detroit area.

The parents of two children, ages 5 and 2, the McGuires' youngest child has been called the "miracle baby." Given up to die by doctors 1½ years ago, the youngster has been restored to health completely through prayer. The evangelists will be sharing their story with those in attendance.

The Rev. Howell Kelly, pastor of the Lighthouse Assembly of God, has extended an invitation to the public to attend the 2-week meeting.

MARIE E. SIENKO,
DEPUTY CLERK

With the coming of the Reformation, however, congregational singing was instituted. What was needed was something that could be sung by amateurs. The popular music of the day — music with a rhythm — was drawn upon but purged of its secular qualities.

While some people find fault with the music they hear and sing in church, this doesn't bother everyone. Some laymen look upon church music as an "ecclesiastical seventh-inning stretch" that breaks up the service and gives them a chance to meditate — although not necessarily about spiritual matters.

Davison objects to church music being assigned this role of "filling the chinks in the morning service and muffling the sound of coins as they drop in the collection plate" — just as he objects to Gospel hymns, which he says are compounded of sentimentality and triteness.

He cites "When the Roll Is Called

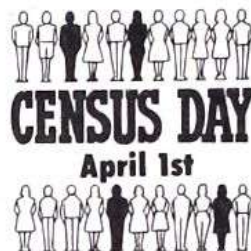

Up Yonder" as the best — or worst — example of "the appalling depths to which the American public's musical taste could descend when left to express itself without restraint."

Davison feels church music should be "an offering to God of the best music we can find."

The modern layman, by contrast, has an attitude toward worship music which is basically selfish, says Davison.

"He does not think of music as a vehicle by which we make our personal contribution of prayer and praise," the music expert writes, "but rather as something which should furnish him with what he vaguely terms a religious feeling."

The decision of the Lutheran Church — the church of Johann Sebastian Bach — to include "How Great Thou Art" in its new hymnal probably means that Davison and his tribe are fighting a losing battle.

Little league ball players warm up for '80 season

Have you ever wondered the differences in the summer baseball program of the Westland Youth Athletic Association and the Wayne-Ford Civic League are?

The following provides a comparison of the two programs, which are in the process of organizing their 1980 summer programs.

The WYAA's Little League program covers boys ages 9 through 12 years in major and minor divisions. All games are played within the city, utilizing 60-foot base paths. The pitcher's mound is located 46 feet from home plate, and there is no base stealing.

There is an All Star team for 11- and 12-year-olds, and 15 players are selected for tournament play.

The WYAA's Babe Ruth League is for boys ages 13 through 15. There are three divisions — A, AA and AAA. All games are played within the city, with 30 tournament players selected. All Star teams are picked for the 13- and 15-year-olds. Regulation diamond and rules are based in the league.

In the WYAA's Senior Babe Ruth League for those 16 through 18 years, teams play within the city, utilizing regulation diamonds and rules. There is an All Star tournament and the selection of 15 tournament players.

In the Civic League program there are boys baseball teams for those 8 through 10 years of age and 11 and 12 years of age.

In the former group, the Mustang Division, all games are played within the city. Sixty-foot base paths and a distance of 46 feet for the pitcher's mound are utilized, as well as regulation baseball rules.

There is an All Star team, and 15 players are selected for tournament play.

In the 11- and 12-year-old Bronco League play is within the city, and an All Star team of 15 players is selected. That age group's PeeWee Reese team has a travel schedule and attends the Reese Tournament.

Seventy-foot base paths and a 47 1/2-foot distance to the pitcher's mound is used, as are regulation baseball rules.

In the Civic League's 13- and 14-year-old program (the Pony League and Sandy Koufax teams), Pony teams play within the city, while the two Koufax teams travel. There is a Pony All Star team and a Koufax tournament. Eighty-foot base paths and 54-foot pitching mounds are used.

Tribute to a centenarian

Outside of the immediate area, few know of or remember the name of Dr. Vergil Vivian Phelps.

But it wasn't always that way for this remarkable man who is an author, minister, and professor who once taught at such universities as Harvard, Yale, the University of Chicago and Wayne State, a man who sat down with the great men of his time to discuss the myriad problems of the world.

A few weeks ago, Dr. Phelps accomplished another plateau in life — on March 7th he became one-hundred years young, and the tributes began to come in from all over the country.

Belatedly, we would like to add our congratulations.

A man who radiates boundless energy, Dr. Phelps was a frequent visitor to these offices "to make sure young writers used correct grammar." He had a particular alertness about him despite the scars of age.

Dr. Phelps demanded and usually got from our editors (who usually hid upon his approach) attention. The weary press couldn't escape Dr. Phelps' sharp criticism — he urged us to write with clarity, to scrape the mundane and strive to make each sentence, each word as sharp as a sword.

He reeked with enthusiasm that brushed off during the dialogue — excuse us — that isn't exactly correct because dialogue connotes a discussion between two persons. Dr. Phelps did most of the talking.

Although now physically frail, Dr. Phelps still speaks with authority; and although he resides in Westland, he continues to patronize the Wayne Bank and Wayne Post Office and shops in the area. His fondness for dahlias, which he plants each summer at the former Recreation Building on Wayne Road, brings smiles to the faces of everyone who watches.

May this small effort of ours to honor him brighten up many, many more of his days.

More about 'Super Sewer'

By MARTHA MILLER

— What legal right did Canton Township Board have to vote $307,000 of our money on building Super Sewer?

The Headlee Amendment requires a vote of people on sewers before they can sell bonds to construct sewers, so, I don't see how Board can commit $307,000 to be spent on design since that is part of construction costs. Township already has existing $7.3 million water and sewer debt.

— How much will Super Sewer cost residents-taxpayers? The total cost is at least $71 million. A federal grant (taxes) will pay $54 million; State grant (taxes) will pay 5 percent ($3.5 million?). That leaves $13.5 million local tax share. It is actually ALL our money — only out of a different pocket. What about maintenance costs?

— Why is Township Board giving total control of operation and water and sewer rate setting to Wayne County board: it has been front page news for years that Wayne County is operating in the red and asking State for financial assistance (our money) due to mismanagement. Over a hundred Canton residents recently appealed to Board the fact that they cannot afford their water bills increasing at astronomical rates. 80 percent increase was scheduled for this January. Sewer rates have increased more than 1000 percent since 1969, and 430 percent since 1975, and are still going up.

— Why are Township and County still forging ahead with Super Sewer plans when State law set up SEMCOG as regional planning authority for Wayne County and they are urging officials to slow-down sewer construction because existing sewers are more than adequate?

— Why did Township Board suddenly feel intimidated when Wayne County said "system will not include any communities not signing agreement by 'Tues'?" Canton has been getting these ultimatums regularly since about 1973. Super Sewer was first proposed 14 years ago.

— If medium-sized sewage plants are more efficient and cost-effective, as stated by Wayne County representative Mr. Egeland in Det. News, Jan. 1, 1980, why is he pressuring Canton to build Super Sewer? The gigantic Macomb sewer collapse of 1977 cost people $15 million on water bills just for repair. Determination of negligence and who should pay (designer or contractor) is still in court. These residents must have suffered immensely from 8 million gallons of raw sewage dumping daily for two weeks into and polluting Clinton River and Lake St. Clair.

— Why couldn't Canton do what some other communities such as Ann Arbor have done and pull out of Super Sewer because of exorbitant costs, environmental fears, and loss of local control? They got a Federal grant and now operate their own treatment plant.

— Why did Board vote for Super Sewer in order "to grow industrially and any other way"? Citizens' Advisory Groups have repeatedly begged for growth control in order to stabilize taxes, schools, services, and environment. Lack of sewer capacity has been Cantons ONLY legal defense for growth control. For years developers have consistently been getting plat approvals for subdivisions with stipulation that building is dependent on sewer capacity.

— How can Canton's plans for voter-approved concept of farmland preservation proceed? Citizens' study groups and surveys have shown that it is desired and necessary. Agricultural products have become an international tool for world peace. Agricultural land tends to be usurped as soon as sewers become available.

— Are broken promises all Canton voters can expect from Board officials they elected? They promised controlled-growth, and controlled-spending. Super Sewer means super-growth AND super-spending.

— What impact will Super Sewer's treating and dumping into Lake Erie have on the Great Lakes? Much of our tax money (Federal and State) has been used to clean up the Great Lakes and progress is finally being reported.

As I see it — Township Board does not have legal right to commit millions of dollars on sewers to promote growth, without OUR vote. Citizens have voiced their desire for growth control by voting them into office because they promised it. Trustees Greenstein and Larson are the only Board members to retain their credibility by voting "NO" on this critical subject. Hopefully, the substantial salary increase the Board gave themselves immediately upon entrance to office will encourage more qualified people to come forward in the next election, in order to preserve Cantons quality of life which was the reason many families moved here.

The Other Side of the Meridian

What's good for Chrysler...

By TOM MOORADIAN
Acting Managing Editor

Cliff Johnson, the president of the Metro-Wayne Democratic Club, is a constant challenge. Recently he criticized the Wayne City Council for purchasing Chrysler products when Ford has a couple of assembly plants in the city and forks out 1.2 million dollars in the form of taxes to City Hall.

"Why?" Johnson questioned in a recent letter, "do the councilmen forget their obligations to the businesses that pay local taxes and accept bids from those who do not do business here?"

On the surface, Johnson has a legitimate point. It is embarrassing to see local governments bypass bids from local businessmen and accept those from businesses outside of the community. Usually the local government argues that they have to accept the lowest bid — there are always exceptions to the rules. Loopholes provided for government to do business.

But that is a different story.

Does Chrysler do business in Wayne? In Canton? In Belleville? In Westland? William Faust, D-Westland, the Senate Majority Leader, came up with some interesting answers and figures. According to his office:

"Legislative approval of the state loan to Chrysler will help preserve $42,434,137 in business transactions for supplier companies in our senatorial district."

"This figure represents the amount of purchases made by Chrysler from local business in 1979," Faust continued. "It also demonstrates the enormous impact Chrysler has on our area economy and underscores the need to keep the auto company financially solvent."

"Moreover, if Chrysler were to go out of business," Faust stressed, "the resulting loss of tax revenue and increased demand for social services would have a devastating effect, not just on the 13th district residents, but the entire state and national economy."

One doesn't have to be an economics genius to understand that if the company would go under, the shock-wave would take — like a maelstrom — many under. The figures that Faust offered defends the logic of above. For example, last year Chrysler purchases from local businesses show that Belleville did $1,562,478.25; Canton - $2,734,777.92; Romulus - $30,411,311.27; Westland - $1,308,380.94 and Wayne - $871,135.84 in business with the corporation.

Is it no wonder that local businesses and residents are sincerely concerned about Chrysler's welfare. And what could well be good for Chrysler is good for area communities.

Back to the continuing story of teachers and teachers' strikes.

The plight and fight of the Romulus Education Association for higher salaries and job security is being driven home by six teachers who left Monday morning at 6 from the State Capital in Lansing and are walking to the Romulus board of education building, a total of 130 some miles.

The six teachers — Mark Anderson, Lance Knudson, Bill and Larry Thomas, John Juriga and Don Foley covered 50 miles the first day and stopped overnight in Stockbridge. They stayed in the homes of teachers in that community and are making their way to Ann Arbor, again on foot. They will be welcomed by teachers in that city and are expected to arrive back in Romulus between 4 to 4:30 p.m.

The six are carrying signs calling for negotiations between the striking teachers' group and the Romulus board of education. The teachers struck 13 days ago over salary disputes and contract language.

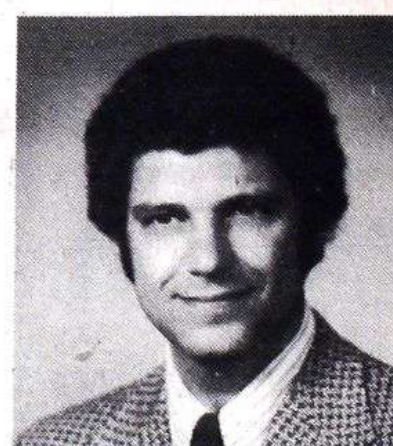

And before we stop, here's another editorial on that subject by Marvin Fisher, interim Superintendent of the Romulus Community Schools.

Schools are for students but Romulus students have now been denied 13 days of school due to an unlawful teacher strike.

Teachers demand a contract, but your Board of Education cannot afford their demands.

To force the acceptance of their demands for a contract, the teachers are not working. Where will this dispute leave the students of Romulus? To yield to the union's demand would result in a serious reduction of services to students.

As Superintendent of your schools, I am responsible along with your Board of Education to provide the best possible instructional program within our financial means.

MARVIN FISHER

This cannot be accomplished if one of our five employee unions holds to their unreasonable demands which disregards our obligation to all students.

I urge you, the citizens of Romulus, to support your Board of Education during these difficult times.

Marvin P. Fischer

Romulus Community Schools

SCAN: Suspected child abuse and neglect

By: Dennis Wortz
Protective Services Worker,
State of Michigan
Chairperson of SCAN Team,
Wayne County General Hospital

The SCAN Team — SCAN, an abbreviation for Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect — is a multi-disciplinary team comprised of physicians, nurses, social workers, psychologists, and other health team members who meet weekly at Wayne County General Hospital to follow up on all reported cases of child abuse and neglect.

Child Abuse and Neglect are among the leading causes of death in children between four weeks and five years of age.

Child Abuse is harm or threatened harm to a child (under the age of 18 years of age) which occurs through nonaccidental physical or mental injury, sexual abuse, or maltreatment.

Child Neglect is harm to a child which occurs when there is a failure to provide adequate food, clothing, medical care, educational opportunity, or adult supervision through negligent treatment.

Some of the things to look for in high-risk children are that they:

- Appear to be depressed, neglected, uncared for, or extremely active.

- Are usually younger. Over 53 percent are six years of age and under.

- Have a history of former injuries either to themselves or their brothers and sisters. Usually have parents who are young, immature, or have had children at an early age.

- Often have parents who were victims of abuse or neglect themselves. Come from families where economic, social, or emotional stress and conflict are present. Come from families from all social, economic, and ethnic groups.

It is estimated that 2,000 children die each year from child abuse- and neglect-related injuries.

A report of abuse or neglect can be phoned in 24 hours a day to the Department of Social Services at 256-9661.

Support for millage

EDITOR: As a City official and citizen, I would like to urge a "Yes" vote for the renewal of six mills for operating expenses for our Belleville schools.

Many necessary programs have been restored and all children are entitled to a quality education from which we will all benefit.

For the sake of our children and community, we must continue to support our educational system by approving the millage renewal at the March 31st election.

'Good story'

EDITOR: In the March 5th and 6th edition of the Romulus Roman on page C-6 appeared a very well written article, "SHOULD YOU BUY A HOUSE NOW?"

As a Realtor Associated dedicated to the Real Estate profession I want very much to commend your Classified Manager Joan Hines, (or whoever) for being open and honest to the public. We need more people like this in the News Media. My hat goes off to you. Due to the reports heard on T.V. newspapers etc. no wonder so many people are confused, frustrated and afraid to invest in a home, but let's face facts, prices increase, yet we must continue to survive. People need a place to live, not only is a home their castle, it is a good investment as well as a tax shelter. Renting only gives you a monthly receipt.

When we purchased, we thought 7½ percent was high compared to what our parents were paying, not to long ago thousands purchased at 10-10½ percent. We probably will never see these figures again — so as the old saying goes — Life must go on. Invest now for your future.

As your article reads — It's not child play trying to decide when to buy a house. Ask yourself, what price you put on the quality of your life. If you wait until next year to buy, you might save a few dollars in loan interest — and you might not. Prices may go down a little — chances are they won't. So, what's more important? Only you can decide what's best for you.

Again, Associated, keep up the good work.

About losers

EDITOR: Why is it everytime a person becomes a loser they start shouting discrimination? Is it such an ego-shattering experience to admit you just didn't make it? That you must invent excuses? The easiest and most used cop-out today is sex and color discrimination.

I am referring to your front page story on February 28, 1980. In this article once again Mr. Jim Netter is showing his true colors (among other lower extremities of the human body).

Can't one accept the fact that there are certain qualifications, educational background, physical requirements and standard practices that employers must demand in order to fill a vacancy with only the best applicant?

Voters have the same say — and didn't they say it last November when we elected our present council members.

Mr. Netter you ran and unfortunately you lost. I thought you had some bright new ideas and deserved my vote. Others must have also, but obviously not enough.

Color had nothing to do with it; even though Wayne is predominately white. They continued to do, as always, elect the best and majority rules. Wayne will always continue the practice of strong leadership for our deserving community.

Mr. Netter, quit making yourself sound like a racist and encouraging Ms. Harris to be a sexist.

It is very unbecoming there can be no group that exists, but only in minority minds.

May the city of Wayne always keep their highest and strictest standards for hiring. My family needs the best to fight criminals, and for fire protection. And I hope we never hire an unequalled person just for "token reasons."

Road repairs

EDITOR: I would like to express my displeasure with the condition of Wayne Road. It appears to be at best, more a wilderness road, rather than a major artery which it is intended.

To say it is a real mess, would be an understatement. It's not uncommon to see mufflers and hubcaps scattered alongside Wayne road. The potholes resemble "elephant traps." They are real car jolters. The road is a traffic hazard with the broken, and cracked concrete.

What will it take to get the WCRC to get going on the resurfacing of this major road?

Let's not have to go through another winter with this traffic hazard, called Wayne Road.

Stop Ross

EDITOR: As a resident of Inkster for 21 years, I feel compelled to write this letter.

When are you going to stop Jane Ross from using your paper for expressing her own reasonable political views?

There is hardly a week that goes by that she doesn't make some crack against our Mayor or Councilmen.

This week she had to hash the Charter Election. Quote: "It is too bad the citizens of Inkster voted down the Charter."

They voted it down because they did not want it! She as much as called those people who voted for it idiots in her column a few weeks back.

It is a dead issue and dead news, so let it die.

I will say I enjoyed her column when she wrote about the people of Inkster and the events that were happening. Let it be that way again, please.

Another 'yes' for millage

EDITOR: The Citizens Advisory Council recommends a "Yes" vote on the Van Buren School Millage Election, March 31st. We believe that the RENEWAL of 6 mills is absolutely necessary to maintain our school programs. We are particularly concerned that with the economic difficulties of our state and nation, local millage money is a must to maintain the education of Van Buren children.

We further believe that school administrators have been responsive to needed changes in our schools.

We are pleased that the Board of Education has resolved to try to continue school programs without asking for additional, school millage at this time.

We fear that the state and federal monies which represent approximately 29 percent of our school budget will be cut substantially for next year. In comparison to other school districts, we do not believe that Van Buren schools have any luxury school programs that can be deleted.

We feel that the children, school teachers, administrators, and the Board of Education need your vote of confidence. VOTE "YES" MARCH 31st.

BARBARA FALER,
Chairperson
The Citizens Advisory Council of the Van Buren School District

On the brighter side

A story of a young athlete making good...

The handsome, sandy-haired young man set his jaw as he faced the group of inquisitive reporters.

He seemed to study the floor for a few seconds and then raised his head and began to answer difficult questions with poise and precision.

It was the most difficult time of the year for the young high school coach who's team had just been defeated for the first time after 26 exciting victories. Jenison Field House in East Lansing, packed to the rafters with 10,004 screaming fans, had just witnessed Highland Park edge Clarkston, 51-50, in the Class A semi-finals of the Michigan State High School Championships.

Coach Gary Nustad, the center of attention of the sports media around the state with his 6-foot-10½ center Tim McCormick, had to be disappointed. His Clarkston Wolves had captured the imagination of sports fans, not only in Michigan but in several surrounding states. McCormick and Nustad — you might say the "Mutt and Jeff" of high school basketball this season — had their names and faces emblazoned across countless sports pages all season long.

Now their dream season had come to a dramatic, and sudden, conclusion. How could favored Clarkston, powered by their 6-10½ All-American center, and a good supporting cast, play so poorly just two steps away from grabbing the "brass ring?" The 26-year-old Nustad stood alone to face the sports writers' sharp questions.

If adversity is the test of a person — and it is — then Nustad passed with flying colors. But there never has been a time when the former Garden City West star has not shown class.

You see, I've known Gary ever since he was junior starting guard at West. Coached by Chris Babler, Nustad and 6-7½ Rick Drewitz powered the Tigers to the semi-finals of the state high school basketball tournament in 1970, exactly 10 years ago this month. With Nustad displaying his left-handed play-making and passing wizardry, West finished 16-0 in the 1970 season and swept through six tough opponents to reach the semi-finals.

However, they were pitted against Pontiac Central and the multi-talented Campy Russell. Drewitz completely outplayed Russell, scored 42 points and received a standing ovation from 13,000 fans when he fouled out with one minute left. G. C. West lost, 84-79, in a tough battle but it was thrill of a lifetime Nustad told me later.

Let sports writers chronicle this year's exploits of Nustad — and he richly deserves it. But also let the record show that it was seven years ago this month that I wrote a long story about this "diamond in the rough." For I knew even then that this young man had poise and polish — long before a few more noted sports writers got on his trail.

During Gary's 3-year stint at West, the Tigers of Chris Babler won 55 games and lost only 7. Winning is not something new to this good-looking young man, whose hair has grown a little fuller and more curly since his high school playing days. Also, his coaching weight is about 20 pounds more than his playing weight.

After high school, Gary was a valuable assistant to Coach Babler and learned invaluable instruction from the veteran West mentor. Nustad coached the West JV team in 1974-75, and my son, Craig, had the privilege of playing for him. Although young Nustad was only 21 years old at the time, he displayed maturity far beyond his years.

Oh, the youthful exuberance was still there. He kicked the bench a few times when he disagreed with an official's call. But, despite a few sore toes, he has always been a credit to sports and a good example for young men to emulate.

He went on to study at University of Detroit, where he graduated in 1975 with a degree in education. His apprenticeship of four years at Garden City West paid off when he was hired as head varsity coach at Clarkston for the 1975-76 season. Clarkston is a rural community near Pine Knob, some 45 miles north of downtown Detroit.

Gary will be the first to tell you he's been blessed, and he's a grateful young man. At the same time Nustad was accepting the Clarkston basketball coaching job, a young 6-foot-3 freshman by the name of Tim McCormick was entering the 9th grade.

Well, the rest is history. McCormick added seven inches to his stature and Nustad added maturity and experience to his coaching repertoire.

Nustad teaches economics, government and current events at Clarkston. He's also caused quite a few "current events" in the world of prep basketball the past few seasons.

Coach Nustad, McCormick and mates had an 8-11 record and then went on to increasingly better marks of 15-6, 20-3 and finally, this season's final record of 26-1.

Last year the Wolves were beaten by Pontiac Central in their district finals. But this year Clarkston won its first district title in 16 years and captured its first regional title ever against the likes of powerful Flint Central and Saginaw. For his efforts, Nustad was named "All-State Coach of the Year" by The Detroit News.

And he richly deserves it.

The praise had been lavishly heaped upon Nustad, McCormick and Clarkston. The small town had literally been "put on the sports map." Now a disappointed young coach stood all alone to face the probing, penetrating questions of a voracious band of sports reporters.

A reporter from the Detroit News seemed to "bait" Nustad with a leading question about the ineffectiveness of McCormick — and perhaps some questionable strategy employed by Nustad. As I stood among the small group of reporters, I sensed the disappointment that Nustad must have felt, especially since he had just come from the gloom-filled Clarkston locker room.

It would have been easy for Nustad to snap back at the reporter or feel a sense of anger over the way the questions were put. But not Gary. He was class all the way. Smooth as silk.

He answered each question with thoroughness and patience. His game plan was thoroughly thought out and planned in detail. Scott McKoin, the talented 6-4 junior forward would take the shots if McCormick was boxed in. And to be perfectly honest, McCormick was so effectively covered like a blanket that he was hardly a factor the whole game.

...As a player

GARY NUSTAD

...As a coach

Nustad and his assistant coach, Larry Mahler, who came to Clarkston four years ago with Gary, taught the Clarkston players how to "read" the Highland Park changing defenses. But they couldn't get the ball to McCormick — and they didn't get the ball to McKoin.

Reflections

'Don't go, Daddy...'

For ten days time came to a halt and then zoomed backwards.

For ten days I leaped out of bed with the ringing alarm, made a hot breakfast in a pretty new kitchen, kissed a little boy on the cheek as he scrunched under his bedcovers begging for just one more minute, and giving him that one minute, plus four, and finally rushing him out the door, lest he be late for school.

For ten days I was a young mother with two young children, and it was only when I looked in the mirror and saw the sags and the bags, that I faced the reality of being 'grandma' who was only pretending.

Little boys have to be a special gift from God, and Jason and Jamie came with all the trimmings. Amazing energy, agility, curiosity, and a sensitivity that permeates whatever they are doing, whether it is taking the television apart, or punching the soap full of holes with the electric toothbrush.

There is the pathos, too.

Three year old Jamie had wakened early one morning, especially missing his mother, and clinging to his daddy, who was late for work.

"Don't go, Daddy," he begged, but Daddy patted the little kid on the head and turned to leave.

"Daddy..."

Turning, Daddy picked up the three year old in his pale blue pajamas and hugged him close.

"Daddy has to go..."

Putting the little one down in his chair, he picked up his briefcase and left. I came into the kitchen, aiming to run downstairs and struggle with the washing machine which was thumping away in protest, when I glanced at the little one sitting in his chair.

The sun beamed through the window, touching on the hanging fern, glancing off the orange juice glass and settling on the blondness of Jamie. He lifted his eyes to me. Misery filled them, and tears slowly seeped down his cheeks.

"Why did Daddy have to go?"

I gathered the little one up on my lap and held him to me.

"Daddy had to go to work."

"Why?"

By JIM BRADLEY

As we talked Sunday night, Gary shared with me two bits of interesting irony that should not go unnoticed by the public. "When I was a sophomore, I came to East Lansing with my dad to watch the semi-finals and I said to my dad, 'You watch, we're going to be playing here next year.' And, sure enough, he kept his word — Nustad, Drewitz, Dennis Leszczynski, Kirk Lewis and John Rutter and company battled Pontiac Central in that classic confrontation.

Nustad then added: "Jim, last year I said to Jim Komula, Livonia Bentley basketball coach, as we watched the semi-finals, 'You mark it down, we're going to be playing here next year.' 'Next Year' was this year and Nustad once again proved good to his word.

But then, the son of Harry and Dene Nustad, who now live in Plymouth, has always said what he meant and meant what he said. Gary and his wife, Susan, who have been married three years, live in Lake Orion, about nine miles from Clarkston, and hope to have a "little basketball player" sometime in the near future.

Yes, Gary Nustad, who is only 5-foot-10, stands head and shoulders above many of his colleagues who coach the sport of high school basketball. Someone has said you are not ready to live until you are ready to die. I believe the same is true in sports, that you're not ready to be a gracious winner until you can suffer gnawing, agonizing defeat gracefully.

This, Gary has done.

I particularly liked what Gary said about his Clarkston players at the close of his interview with the sports writers after losing Friday.

He said: "I'm mighty proud of them. I feel very fortunate to be associated with fine young men like this. They are, in my mind and heart, number one and they always will be!"

And Garden City, Clarkston, and the entire state of Michigan, can say the same thing about this class young man and outstanding coach — Gary Nustad.

"To make money to feed you," I told him.

His face looked up into mine, his lips twisted and the tears poured, "But I'm not hungry..." he wailed.

The washing machine beat out a gasping breath, and I tucked the little kid under my arm and raced down to rescue it. The washing machine, too, was missing its mistress. I could tell this by the way it acted. As long as I stayed near it, it washed those clothes beautifully, never uttering a thump nor a bang, but the minute I put my foot on the stairs to leave it, it set up a mighty roar. So I stayed there until the front door banged, and a big, loud, six year old howl came roaring down the stairs:

"I'm hungry!"

Grabbing Jamie I rushed upstairs to find Jason standing in the middle of the kitchen, scowling.

"Hey," I yelled. "What's wrong with you?"

"I hate school," he shouted, swinging his school bag.

"Why do you hate school?" I asked, taking off his scarf and coat, and wiping up the dripping water from his boots.

"I get tired of doing all that baby-stuff," he answered, throwing his school papers on the table.

"Honey, you go to school to learn," I told him and launched into a lecture on how one's brain grows with learning and all that good wise stuff of which grandmothers are made. I finished it up by repeating, "You go to school to learn."

The scowl deepened on Jason's forehead, and his eyes shot a fiery glance at me.

"They why don't they teach me something I don't already know?"

On the tenth day they brought Bobby home from the hospital, accompanied by his mama. No sign of the trauma of his birth. And as the young mother sat down on the sofa in the family room, the newborn in her arms and her two little boys hugging her and touching their new little brother, their other grandmother unpacking her suitcase.

I looked around the room, touched by sunlight and happiness, watched my son as he watched his little family, and I went out the door and softly closed it behind me.

For ten days it was fun to pretend...

Relators urge tax relief, federal spending controls

The latest round of increases for home mortgage interest rates—to 15 percent or more—will dampen the already depressed local housing market still further, according to Western Wayne Oakland County Board of REALTORS (WWOCBR). "It's becoming obvious that these increases, which could go even higher, will squeeze more prospective buyers out of the market and stymie many sellers who want to move up," said John J. Halser, WWOCBR president. "As representatives of these two groups, we see them as victims of a bad mix of federal government fiscal and monetary policy.

"Federal deficit spending, too rapid growth of the money supply and enactment of inflation-causing regulations have been major causes of the accelerated consumer price inflation. It rose from a level of 4.8 percent in 1976 to 13.2 percent last year."

Halser said one result has been that typical mortgage payments for an average home have climbed past $500 per month compared to about $300 a year ago. Existing home sales, which peaked near 4 million in 1978, are expected to drop below 3 million during 1980.

New housing needs, estimated to be 2 million or more units a year, will be left largely unmet with starts expected to dip as low as 1.2 million units this year.

"On top of this is an increasingly onerous tax burden facing the average household," Halser said. "Proposal of an all-time record $76 billion increase in 1981 will take another $1,000 from average household income. This means taxes will have doubled from $4,000 to $5,000 from 1976 through the 1981 fiscal year.

"We support recommendations of our national association for six steps that should be taken and which would bring some relief to home buyers and sellers," He said these included:

—A 2 percent reduction in the growth of federal spending during the 1980 fiscal year.

—A 1 percent slower growth in federal spending than proposed by President Carter in the 1981 fiscal year.

—A balanced budget in the 1981 fiscal year based on the President's estimates.

Tax relief in 1981 to remove the incentive for the federal government to increase inflation and inflation-induced tax receipts.

Limiting the growth in federal spending in future years to be at least 1 percent slower than growth in individuals' income. Holding federal spending to no more than 21 percent of the Gross National Product in 1985 and lower thereafter.

Emphasizing tax relief to encourage savings and investment in residential, commercial and industrial structures and equipment; to increase productivity and real income for workers, and to lower interest rates and inflation.

The WWOCBR president said: "If these recommendations are followed, our national economists estimate that by the mid-1980s prices would drop 3 percent, two percentage points could be shaved from mortgage and other long term interest rates, 400,000 additional homes would be built and a million more families would be able to improve their housing, we would realize a 2 percent productivity improvement."

Animals surveyed

"Animals of the Ice Age" will be the subject of a nature program to be presented at the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock on Sunday at 2 p.m.

David Letasi, amateur paleontologist, will use slides and preserved animal material to identify many of the now extinct animal species which roamed over the eastern United States. Theories regarding the relatively quick demise of such animals as the mastodon, mammoth, giant beaver, camel and others will be discussed.

This program is free, however, vehicle entry permits are required.

For additional information contact the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark at 782-1255 (Flat Rock).

HAD ONE TOO MANY?

YES, but I sold it in the Want Ads.

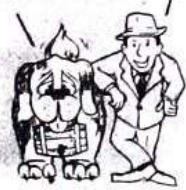

Yes, I had one too many, but I sold the extra one through the quick-action Want Ads.

Brandy and Snifter were both great St. Bernards, but two is too many. Found Brandy a great home in a mountain winery. Those Want Ads are read everywhere.

If you have one too many of any useful item, a Want Ad can find it a new home and fill your wallet with some of that government lettuce.

Clean out those storage areas, it's a good New Year's Resolution, and those still valuable items like toys, bikes, appliances, sewing machines, typewriters, musical instruments, and the like, will be welcomed by someone.

I'LL DRINK TO THAT.

PHONE YOUR AD IN, TODAY!

Advanced Tickets Only will be sold. Tickets are available at the Detroit Historical Museum.

Artrain is back on the right track

Michigan, get ready! The Michigan Artrain will be making tracks to a dozen communities state-wide from April through July. The "museum on wheels" was designed to bring the fine arts and a better understanding of them to the people — but, it's a far cry from a traditional museum. A snazzy 415 feet long, the train includes three gallery cars, a generator car, studio car with "art in progress", and a turn of the century caboose bringing up the rear.

On Artrain '80, you can get acquainted with the works of such masters as Picasso, Matisse and Chagall. Browse a photo documentation of major Michigan public sculptures, including Nevelson and Calder pieces, and, a post-World War II exhibit gathered from Michigan museums and private collections.

One of Artrain's most popular features is the studio car. It's equipped with work areas, potters wheel, kiln and more to accommodate resident artists who travel with the train, demonstrating and chatting with visitors about their work. Local artists also are invited to participate. Artists in residence may range from potters and painters to taxidermists and violin makers. Local committees have devoted a considerable number of hours getting ready for the train's arrival. At most stops, art fairs and other special activities have been planned in conjunction with Artrain.

The Artrain is the only museum of its kind. Its exhibits and displays encompass all mediums of art, cultures and periods of history to present the broadest and most exciting art experience on wheels.

There is no admission charge, and more than 2 million visitors have enjoyed this unique approach to getting people together with the art and artists of the past and the future. Since its opening in 1971, Artrain has visited over 100 Michigan communities, and been on national tour to 19 states in the Rocky Mountain, Upper Mid-West and Southeast regions. Plans are now underway for another out of state tour in 1981 — but this year you can catch the train at home, in Michigan at Albion, April 5-11; Tecumseh, April 16-21; Fenton, April 26 - May 1; Bangor, May 7-11; Grandville, May 14-19; Reed City, May 23-28; Alpena, June 3-8; Boyne City, June 12-16; Ludington, June 20-25; Norton Shores, June 29 - July 6; Detroit, July 12-20; and Mackinaw City, July 25-29.

All Aboard!

Museum offers Panorama of Pottery

Henry Ford Museum's special exhibit, "Panorama of Pottery," which runs from March 29 through April 13, could easily be subtitled, "A program with visitor participation offering everything you always wanted to know about pottery but didn't know who to ask."

The program, new this year, will be offered from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends and Good Friday. The exhibit will begin with a potter making reproductions from the Henry Ford Museum collections. There will also be live demonstrations of decorating redware and craftsmen showing methods of slush casting, drape molding and examples of waxing, glazing and decorating a candlestick.

Slush casting is a method by which the clay mixture, or slush, is poured inside a hinged mold. Some of the material adheres to the inside of the mold while the rest is poured out. As the slush hardens, the mold is pulled away. In drape molding, the clay is draped over a mold, left to harden, then removed and the piece is finished.

"Panorama of Pottery" also provides a hands-on experience for visitors. Six potter's wheels, using kick-power, are available with clay samples for visitors to try their hands at making a small bowl — or whatever else it develops into.

Another hands-on segment will allow visitors to work with the various methods of decorating pottery, including stippling, slip trail and sgraffito. In addition, there will be demonstrations of decorating stoneware.

There will be six cases of redware selected from the museum's collections. Also there will be an exhibit of the various clays used to make redware and a slide presentation on the preparation of the clay for the potter's wheel.

Another display, using cut-away illustrations, will show the steps necessary to make a candleholder, an inkwell, a grease lamp and a small bottle.

There is no additional charge for "Panorama of Pottery," beyond regular Museum admission of $4.25 for adults, $2.25 for children 6-12 or the special senior citizen rate of $3.50. Children under six are admitted free of charge.

For energy, energy conservation

State, local programs help with 'bills'

The price of energy and energy conservation are on everyone's mind these days. A variety of state and local programs and services are available to Michigan residents to help everything from paying your electricity bill to caulking your home.

Four major programs offer assistance with fuel and electricity bills, home repair grants and tax credits for weathering your home.

The Energy Crisis Assistance Program, operated by the Community Services Administration (CSA) and local Community Action Agencies (CAA), offers aid for the head of the household whose yearly total family income that falls within CSA income guidelines.

Payments are made directly to the utility or fuel oil dealer. The CAAs also offer short-term emergency assistance, such as fuel delivery, warm clothing and blankets or other temporary services to prevent hardship or danger to health.

For more information contact the Energy Hot Line at 1-800-292-4704.

Persons who qualify for the Energy Crisis Assistance Program also automatically qualify for home weatherization services of up to $1,000.

These weatherization services are not limited, however, just to participants in the Energy Crisis Assistance Program. It is possible to qualify for winterization even if you do not need help with fuel bills.

Priority in both the weatherization and Energy Crisis Assistance Program is given to senior citizens, handicappers, native Americans and homes heated with fuel oil.

The Emergency Needs Program, operated by the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS), also offers financial assistance for residents having difficulty paying utility bills. Eligibility is based on individual needs. DSS makes the payments directly to the utility or fuel oil dealer.

The State of Michigan offers a home heating tax credit based on your personal income and the number of exemptions that you claim. The amount of credit varies, but generally the lower your income and the more exemptions you claim, the bigger your credit will be. If you are a senior citizen you are allowed a double exemption.

In addition to these programs, a number of other agencies and organizations offer energy financial and other assistance. A directory of the programs can be obtained by calling the Energy Hot Line at 1-800-292-4704. The program include:

— Home repair services, operated by the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging. This office contracts with other agencies to improve the condition of the home, to extend the life of the home or to correct health and safety hazards.

You must be 60 years or older to qualify. To apply, contact your Area Office on Aging.

— Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) and Department of Social Services (DSS) offer loans for home improvements that increase livability of the property, market value of the property, conserve energy or comply with applicable housing codes. Loan terms vary according to income. Contact MSHDA at P. O. Box 30044, Lansing 48909, or call (517) 373-8016.

— The Energy Saver Plus loan programs, sponsored by the Michigan State Housing Development Authority and the Department of Social Services, offers homeowners who want to conserve energy reduced interest rates and slightly higher mortgage ceilings. An additional interest reduction and hike in the mortgage ceiling are available for energy conservation improvements that include solar equipment.

Contact the Michigan State Housing Development Authority, P.O. Box 30044, Lansing 48909.

— Residential Energy Conservation Credit. A maximum federal income tax credit of $300 is allowed for insulation and other energy conserving devices installed in or on a taxpayer's principal residence. For further information, call 1-800-462-0830 if your area code is 313.

— Residential Renewable Energy Equipment Credit. A maximum federal income tax credit of $2,200 is allowed for installation of solar, wind, geothermal and other renewable energy equipment on a taxpayer's principal residence.

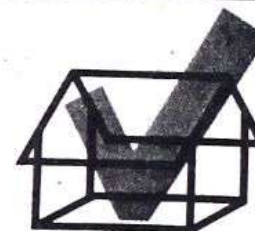

— Michigan Solar Tax Exemptions. Solar, wind or water conversion devices are exempt from property and sales tax. To obtain a tax exemption certificate application contact Special Property Appraiser, Michigan State Tax Commission, Department of Treasury, Lansing 48922, or call (517) 373-0500.

— Michigan Solar Tax Credit. A state income tax credit is allowed for the installation of solar, wind or water energy conversion devices. The credit is based on a percentage of the total installation costs. Call the Energy Hot Line at 1-800-292-4704 for further information.

— Project Conserve, Michigan Department of Commerce, Energy Administration. A free computerized home energy audit to help save money and conserve energy. You can request a questionnaire by calling the Energy Hot Line at 1-800-292-4704. After you mail back the questionnaire a homeowner report is returned to you which includes energy saving tips, their cost and estimates on how much you will save in dollars by weatherizing.

Help Yourself Save Money Help America Save Energy

Check the Big Ten Checklist to Save More Energy in Your Home

Home Energy Checklist

You are probably using more electricity, gas, and oil than necessary. By using the Big Ten Checklist, you can identify ways of reducing energy use and costs, and help the nation conserve energy. The first six items include actions which you can undertake with little or no expense. Other measures involving expenditures also may result in long-term savings of money and energy.

- ☐ 1 Weather-stripping/caulking — look for air cracks around doors, windows, and other openings, such as around pipes and ducts. Seal them by caulking* or weather-stripping.* Heat and air conditioning escape through cracks.
- ☐ 2 Thermostat — set at 65 degrees in winter and at least 5 degrees lower when sleeping or away. (Higher heating temperatures are recommended for homes with sick, elderly, or infants.) Set at 78 degrees in summer. Consider a clock thermostat.*
- ☐ 3 Water heaters — this is a major energy user in the home. Try a lower thermostat setting. Consider an insulation wrap.* Install water flow restrictors in showers and faucets. They cut hot water use without affecting family comfort. When replacing water heater, choose an energy-efficient model.
- ☐ 4 Heating/cooling system — clean or replace filters as needed. Close vents in unused rooms. Insulate* ducts and pipes in unheated spaces. Consider devices* which can increase the efficiency of your existing system. When replacing, choose an energy-efficient model.
- ☐ 5 Sunlight — keep direct sunlight out in summer; let it in during winter. Drapes, shutters, awnings, shade trees, glass with reflective film,* and solar screens* help.
- ☐ 6 Appliances/lighting — fully load dryers and clothes and dish washers. Turn off unnecessary lights. If replacing, buy energy-efficient appliances and lighting.

Improve home's appearance with 'magic'

If you've always wanted to try your hand at magic, here are some simple tricks that are guaranteed to work and will help improve the appearance of your home at the same time.

Does a large lot make your house seem to disappear by comparison? You can make it reappear with a minimum of pocus and a light-colored roof, according to the CertainTeed Home Institute. A light-colored roof gives the optical illusion of height and size to low, small houses. Hence, it can bring about a sense of proportion to your property.

Or does a large house dwarf your lot? If it does, conjure up a little reverse voodoo and add a dark-colored roof. It'll make your house stand out less.

Should you want to diminish the heat from the summer sun, say "Abracadabra" while you add a light-colored roof. Just as light-colored clothes help keep golfers and tennis players cool, a light-colored roof will help your house stay cool.

If, instead, you want to draw the heat of the winter sun toward your roof, wave your wand while you add a dark-colored roof.

Want to add a pinch of security to your magic roofing potion? You'll need three eyes of newt and an earthtone-colored roof. Psychological tests reveal that people associate brown with places where they feel secure.

Would you like roofing shingles that look like wood, but last like asphalt? Tap your heels together and repeat "Hallmark". These shingles are the finest reproduction of hand-split wood shakes on the market today. And the magicians at CertainTeed make them so durable they're given a 25-year limited warranty.

Just want to add some life to a dead roof? Don you thinking cap and concentrate on texture. Textured shingles will bring a dead roof back to

With a tap of his wand, this magician has updated the appearance of his house with a light-colored roof. Just a few helpful hints from the magicians at the CertainTeed Home Institute have shown him how certain tricks create a magic spell on his home. He can make it look larger, smaller, stay warmer in the winter or cooler in the summer, and last longer than ever before. To become a roofing magician yourself, write for the free booklet, "A Consumer Guide to Roofing," from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Penna. 19482.

Buyer's market: Condition of home will affect price

If you're one of the thousands of area residents who will be selling a home this year in preparation for a move, start getting ready now.

That's the advice of the 4,500 members of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR), who caution that you're moving into a "buyer's" market.

"This means that buyers have a wide range of homes from which to choose and at highly competitive prices," said John J. Halser, WWOCBR president. "A home that shows sign of neglect or the need for extensive work will either turn buyers away or drop their offers far below the listing price."

"We don't advise sellers to undertake costly renovation immediately prior to listing, but we do suggest they prepare the home to look as good as possible through less costly repair projects."

WWOCBR members suggest potential sellers begin by making a room-by-room inspection of the home, but looking at it from a buyer's point of view. This will aid in determining what can be done to bring each room up to its full sales attraction.

During the inspection, they suggest making a list of what needs to be done, the supplies required for "do-it-yourself" work and what outside help might be required. Estimate the time required for each job you can do and set up a schedule according to expected free time.

"Some communities require a home be inspected by local officials to assure it meets certain codes and standards before it is sold," Halser noted. "Our members can advise clients of this requirement and often can indicate what parts of the home may need work."

"The amount of work, required could be quite extensive, particularly in older homes. So we recommend preparation for this inspection be done as early as possible before a planned move. This helps avoid delays caused by the various trades not always being available. It also permits the homeowner to shop around to find the most reasonable price for the outside services required."

When you know what supplies you will need for your own fix-up projects, the WWOCBR members suggest you start watching the ads of suppliers for sales and specials that

Gaining on inflation: By building equity with your house

A favorite pastime of homeowners these days is discussing the skyrocketing cost of housing, and congratulating each other on buying a home when they did.

And they should be congratulated. Housing costs are going up continually ... in some areas as much as $5,000 to $10,000 a year! Nearly everywhere, homes are worth more today than they were yesterday.

But there is always one skeptic in a crowd who contends that although your house is worth more now than when you bought it, so what?

It would cost you much more to buy another one so you're really not gaining in the game of inflation.

But you ARE gaining in the game of inflation. And if you make it work for you, you can gain even faster.

The fact is that the difference between what you now owe on your house and what it is worth on today's market (it's called equity) gives you a great deal of borrowing power.

Depending on how much equity you have in the house, you could have enough to finance an addition, such as a family room, patio or extra bedroom, to modernize your kitchen, or put in a tennis court or swimming pool.

There are two good reasons for tapping this equity, according to one financing organization. First, the addition will add even more value to your house, and, secondly, you'll be buying at today's dollars and paying off in devalued dollars as inflation continues to climb.

However, homeowners wishing to capitalize on their equity should shop carefully. Second mortgage lenders are not always regulated, and the unsophisticated borrower could be saddled with unexpected charges and interest rates, if he is not careful.

Home equity loans to $25,000 with 10-year terms are common. And amounts up to $50,000 are possible where local regulations permit.

Since most home equity loans are written for five to 10 years, the total interest expense generally will be less than it would be if an existing low-rate first mortgage with many years left to run were refinanced at today's higher rates.

life by casting a pattern of small shadows across it. The deep, simulated woodgraining of this shingle is entrancing.

The roofing magicians also offer this suggestion — use top quality shingles for re-roofing. It takes as many magicians' helpers just as much time to conjure up a new roof, regardless of the quality of the shingles. So, it saves them time and you money to have them use their magic on high-quality shingles that are guaranteed to last.

Little fabric goes long way in decorating

There you were on vacation last summer...stopping at a nifty little fabric shop and falling in love with a remnant. Such a buy for a few yards of material — how could you resist?

You were warned: "Not enough for a slipcover or drapes," said the clerk. But it was so pretty that you bought it anyway. It's been in the closet, hiding ever since: you still love it, but what do you do with it?

Linda Newman, ASID, an interior designer for Armstrong Cork Company, shows how a little fabric can go a long way.

Designing a model interior for Beacon Homes in Port Richey, Fla., Ms. Newman created a high-style country great room using a minimal amount of "Geraniums" printed yard goods by S. M. Hexter. By splitting a 54"-inch wide panel three ways, she was able to stretch the material for stunning window-panel inserts. Two lengths gave her six panels for three windows. What was left over was enough to cover two Founders ottomans, with four toss-pillow covers to boot.

The pattern has tremendous clout in small yardage. Its scale and brilliant colors provide enough punch to brighten up the room the easiest way possible.

Ms. Newman felt that the open area needed one more tie-in. And so she asked an amateur artist to copy the geranium pattern on inexpensive masonite matching the acrylic paint colors.

With just a little ...

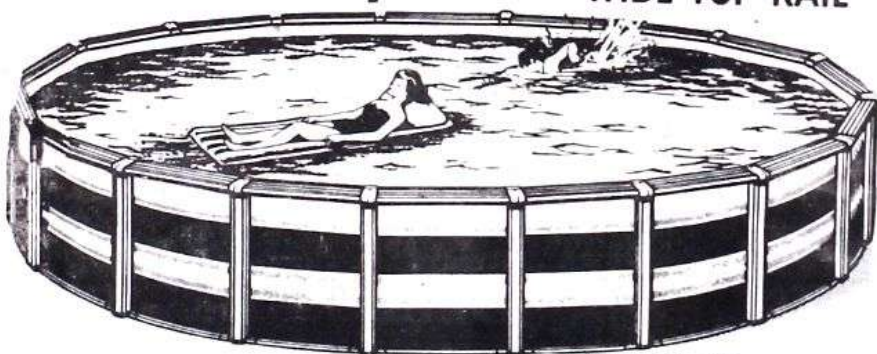

An excellent example of how to get a lot of decorator dollar value out of a few yards of pattern fabric is illustrated by Linda Newman, an Armstrong interior decorator, who literally

"stretched" a minimal amount of material for tremendous visual effect in a Beacon Homes' model interior, Port Richey, Fla.

SOLAR ENERGY, IT CAN WORK FOR YOU.

Think solar energy is still experimental? Too new and unreliable?
Not true.

In fact, millions of solar systems throughout the world are supplying energy to homes, swimming pools, office buildings, hospitals and schools. Solar systems have been working for over 30 years.

A solar system is an investment that pays itself back faster than you think. And as fuel costs go up, savings increase. Efficient Daystar systems are proving it every day.

The fact is, solar energy systems are reliable and economically feasible.

Solar works. In the North. In the South. In the East and the West.

It can work for you. To get information about a Daystar solar system for your home or building call:

Double glazing cuts energy loss

An additional pane of glass could clear up a blurred energy picture, even if you're accustomed to seeing "double" through your home's windows.

Energy experts have discovered that a third pane of glass added to an existing double-glazed window can reduce conducted heat loss by more than 30 percent. This means less energy is wasted and the cost of heating and cooling your home is reduced.

Triple glazing can be achieved simply by adding a separate storm sash to an existing window, with double-paned insulating glass, except basement-utility windows, picture windows and gliding doors.

But the benefits of triple-glazing don't end with the addition of an extra pane of glass. Because triple glazing provides better thermal protection, homeowners can take advantage of the benefits of large window areas. These are natural light sources, which reduce the need for artificial light and large operating windows to provide ventilation whenever there are prevailing breezes. This can all but eliminate the need for air conditioning at certain times of the year.

Depending on the local weather conditions, the triple glazing permits homeowners to nearly double their window area while maintaining the same comfort level indoors as with double-pane insulating glass.

Although triple glazing is recommended in areas of extreme cold, adding a third pane of glass becomes more and more practical in these times when fuel costs are rising 10 to 15 percent annually.

What about the payback period? In areas experiencing 5,000 degree days, such as St. Louis, Mo., with an electric rate of 45 cents per kilowatt hour, the payback for triple glazing casement windows would be 5.6 years.

Using oil heat at a cost of 87 cents per gallon in an area of 6,000 degree days, such as Pittsburgh, Penna., the payback for triple glazing would be 6.12 years. The adjusted payback is based on normal increases in fuel rates over a 10-year period.

In areas with 8,500 to 10,000 degree days 8 Duluth, Minn., Grand Forks, N.D., and Great Falls, Mont. — the payback with triple glazing generally is less than 3 years.

will help cut costs. A good manual on home repairs can be good early investment on how to pick the best tools and materials and how to do the job in the easiest manner.

The collective experience of the WWOBBR members indicate the following are sales preparation steps that can be undertaken inside the home while cold weather persists.

—Prospective buyers are concerned about the extent and cost of redecorating. A little fresh paint and wallpaper can help brighten walls and set off rooms to good advantage.

—Fix any leaky faucets, stuck doors, loose knobs, cracked windows and other such items that may suggest the home has not been given continued care.

—Every home buyer is interested in ample closet and storage space. Start discarding unneeded articles and arrange these areas neatly so they may be seen at their best.

—An attractive bathroom can be a sales clincher. Put it in perfect order with all plumbing working properly, bathtubs and showers well-caulked and all tiles and brightwork securely in place.

—Bedrooms are prime selling features and size is always important. Excess furniture should be removed and the remainder arranged to accent available space.

—If carpets and drapes will be included in the sale, they should be cleaned with small rugs or mats used to protect heavy wear areas of carpets.

—Basements should be thoroughly cleaned and stored items arranged to show space utility. A dehumidifier may help remove any suggestion of dampness.

—Garages can become catch-alls and along with basements may require a careful winnowing out of items that will be sold or discarded before you move.

When the weather improves, make a similar inspection and draw up a work schedule for the home exterior, landscaping, lawn and garden areas. These are the signs that say welcome and invite the prospective buyer in for a more complete look at the property.

Behind the hanging is another example of coordination, the wallpaper — an open, airy, cane design from F. Although a Collector's Cherry cocktail table from Thomasville keeps everything traditional, the wormy chestnut Parsons table, and country-like accessories make the room cozier and less formal in feeling.

Americans to spend $45 billion

Brisk home remodeling year predicted

Americans are expected to dip into their pockets and come up with more than $45 billion this year to improve and modernize their homes. A recently completed study showed that as late as 1975, homeowners spent $21.1 billion for home improvements.

Several developments in recent years point toward a healthy home remodeling and modernization industry becoming one of the most rapidly growing and vigorous segments of the nation's economy.

Inflation, aggravated by the soaring costs of new homes and high interest rates, is forcing many homeowners to realize that bigger and better doesn't require a move.

"Another impetus to soaring home modernization industry is the high cost of energy," said John Hammon, vice-president of the National Home Improvement Council. "This has led to a boom in such energy-related improvements as insulation, storm windows and replacement windows and doors."

Hammon added that the replacement market for certain products such as appliances, roofing, siding, kitchen cabinets and bath vanities surpasses the volume of these products being installed in new homes.

Along with the rapid expansion in the home improvement market has come a number of disreputable entrepreneurs, whose offices are little more than the glove compartments of their trucks, Hammon said, adding that impersonating professional contractors, they prey on unsuspecting consumers.

How can you determine whether a contractor is a qualified professional or a fly-by-night operator?

According to Hammons, the National Home Improvement Council, largest association in the remodeling industry, recommends homeowners contact at least three professionals with established places of business.

Make sure the contractor is financially stable and willing to supply references from satisfied customers. The council also suggests checking a contractor's reputation with the local Chamber of Commerce and Better Business Bureau.

NHIC members for example pledge to follow a prescribed code of ethics, Hammons said. This code assures consumers of "the highest standards of frankness, integrity and responsibility."

Carpeting: Do it yourself

Unless she's Bionic Woman, when married to home and career, even the most dynamic gal in the world can be a "harried" one. For a working wife who does her own housework and holds down a job as well, wall-to-wall carpet is a blessing.

With its ability to perpetually look great despite low maintenance, wall-to-wall carpet salvages physical energy and keeps morale high.

At one time, wall-to-wall carpet installation was strictly a job for the professional. No longer... The large array of do-it-yourself carpets on the market today allow anyone to achieve excellent results and save money, too.

Carpet squares are one option, but the do-it-yourselfer needn't restrict himself to 12- by 12-inch squares. Some firms now offers fashionable and functional wall-to-wall carpet for less than $10 per square yard...and you install it yourself.

These roll goods come with their own high-density foam backing, eliminating the need (and cost) of padding. With rolls, there's also a minimum of "fuss and muss." All you need for tools are double-faced adhesive tape, shears, and a crayon or chalk.

Some patterns come in 12-foot wide rolls and are very easy to install. Once the job is done, it's difficult to distinguish it from a professional installation.

You can get a free leaflet — "How To Install Do-It-Yourself Carpet" — with complete instructions and illustrations including a handy chart for estimating how much carpet to buy, by writing for CD-683 to Armstrong Cork Company, P.O. Box 3001, Lancaster, PA 17604.

Chimney sweeping:

You can do it yourself with 'Black Magic'

With the advent of fall, homeowners' thoughts turn to cleaning up summer's debris and putting things in order for use this winter. In thousands of homes nationwide, cleaning the chimney or stovepipe has been added to the list of traditional cleaning projects.

To make this job easier, and less expensive in the long run, for the millions of people heating totally or partially with wood, Black Magic Chimney Sweeps Intl., Inc. of Stowe, Vt., has developed a Do-It-Yourself Chimney Sweeping Kit. The kit provides the necessary equipment and instructions to permit anyone to clean their chimney.

Chimneys and stovepipes are cleaned to reduce the danger of chimney fires. Fires are caused by the hazardous build-up of soot and creosote that collect in household flues. It is estimated there were more than 40,000 chimney fires in the United States last year, causing approximately $23 million in damage.

To determine if a chimney needs cleaning the damper must be opened and the flue inspected by shining a light into it. Stovepipes can be checked by taking a section or two apart. If the creosote build-up is a quarter inch or more, a cleaning is recommended. A cleaning will insure a creosote free chimney and increased heating efficiency, when the first fire of the fall is needed.

There are several ways to clean a chimney. One is to hire a professional sweep, complete with top hat and tails. The number of sweeps has increased with the rising use of wood heat. In many areas, however, trained sweeps do not exist or have too many service calls.

An alternative, but not recommended, is to adopt the old fashioned method of climbing onto the roof recommended, is to adopt the old fashioned method of climbing onto the roof to heat chains against the inside of the chimney or to pull a burlap bag of bricks up and down the flue. Chains can damage the chimney tile or lining causing safety hazards, and bags of bricks cannot reach into the corners of a square chimney.

A third, and far easier and economical method, is to use the Black Magic Do-It-Yourself Kit. It allows most homeowners to clean from the bottom up, or can be used from the top down. The kit permits the do-it-yourselfer to clean his or her chimney or stovepipe regularly.

The kit includes a rugged wire brush designed for the shape and dimension of the buyer's flue; 21 feet of flexible fiberglass rods (enough for most 2-story homes) to attach to the brush; a wire bench brush; couplings; and a complete instructional manual. The easy to use equipment costs $45 to $70, or a little more than the cost of hiring a professional sweep once. The kit meets professional standards and should last for years of repeated use.

Woodburning homeowners and fall cleaners can
